Talks on the Song of Songs (Christian Classics (Paraclete)) Bernard of Clairvaux, Bernard

Bernard of Clairvaux (1090-1153), one of Christianity's greatest mystics and father of what was perhaps the most influential new monastic order of—the Cistercians—devoted eighteen years of his life to his literary master piece. Sermons on the Song of Songs.

Although the Song of Songs, a brief book in the old Testament, contains no explicit mention of God, the passionate love poetry became for Bernard a springboard into a major exposition of Scripture and an illuminated allegory of the spiritual life. Simply said, this gentle saint found God incarnate in every word.

This volume containing excerpts for each of Bernard's 86 sermons, joins the Paraclete Christian Classics Series, a highly-acclaimed series devoted to making the great writers of the faith accessible to today's readers. Offering a fascinating glimpse of Christian theology, these writings encourage us to open ourselves to a new experience of love—the transforming and all—fulfilling embrace.
