The journey to be a good programmer is hard. This eBook uses basic English knowledge and uses available systems to create programs that solve real life problems. Simple nouns, adjectives, and verbs are translated into program concepts and show up on the screens as tabs, fields, and buttons. It is about having fun - and not just being geeky. There is almost no references to curly braces, syntax, etc. etc. If you still want to program using Javascript or Java or dotNET, you can of course use these concepts as classes, properties, and methods in those languages as well. But, the focus of our journey in this book is to self-discover how easy it is to convert Basic English into working mobile application on your phone, or, as a web site. We create a Complaint System for a school, so if you have complaint about any area in the school (ex. Graffiti in bathroom), you can take a picture and publish it, so administrators can resolve it.

This book includes ability for you to access the internet (cloud!) based tool mentioned in the book without cost.
